Food Shopper

by Cathy B. Hinton

Father's Day is just around the corner so now's the time to start thinking about Dad's special meal. Most men have a favorite main dish which could range from thick juicy pork-chops to a sizzling steak.

With meat prices coming down lower each week this may be the time to pick out that favorite cut of meat for the man in your family. He will appreciate the special attention, you can be sure of that. Check the meat counter and you'll see that both pork and beef are being sold with attractive price tags. Many retailers, are featuring these items in week end specials so check the food ads before you shop.

While you're at the meat counter you may notice a change in the labels for beef, veal, lamb and pork. At the present time many stores have begun the switch to standard meat labeling. This is a voluntary program developed by the national Livestock and Meat Board. This system was developed to end the confusion and frustration at the meat counter, no longer will one retail meat cut have three different names. One specific name will be established for each retail meat cut sold in the U.S. No longer will meat buying be such a mystery.

Each label will follow the same format. The kind of meat will be listed first, followed by the wholesale cut - check, rib, loin or round. This tells you where the meat comes from on the animal. Next the retail cut is listed - blade, roast, loin, etc. This tells you what part of the primal cut the meat comes from A good example would be BEEF, CHUCK BLADE ROAST.

Of course you'll still recognize old favorites as the popular name will follow the standard name. Beef rib eye steak is the standard name and is known to many as "Delmonico Steak".

The new label may list "Delmonico Steak" at the bottom so you won't pass by an old favorite.

As you're shopping for that special meat item for Father's Day check to see if standard meat labels are bieng used in your area.

Of Interest To Veterans

The timetable for payment of increases to some 2.5 million service disabled veterans and dependents of veterans who died of service - connected disabilities was reported today by the Veterans Administration. A new law (Public Law 93-295) signed by the President May 31 increased disability compen-sation payments to veterans by 15 to 18 per cent, and dependency and indemnity compensation for widows and children by about 17 per cent. The statute made the increases retroactive to May 1, 1974. A separate retroactive check covering the increases for the months of May and June will be sent to VA to the veterans and dependents by mid July. The regular monthly checks due next on July 1 will be paid at the old rate, but the new increases will be reflected in checks received August 1 and thereafter.

VA officials emphasized that no application or inquiry will be necessary to receive the increased amounts. The increase, they said, will be made by the agency automatically for all veterans and dependents.

The new law boosts payments to veterans rated 10 to 50 per cent disabled by VA by 15 per cent, and those rated 60 to 100 per cent disabled by 18 per cent. The monthly payment to single veterans with 10 per cent disabilities goes up from $28 to $32. For veterans rated 100 per cent disabled under the VA's general schedule, the monthly sum is increased from $495 to $584, and for the most severely disabled veterans, the maximum monthly amount is jumped from $1,232 to $1,454.

Veterans whose service - connected disabilities are rated 50 per cent or more receive additional allowances if they have dependents. These added allowances are also increased under the new law by 15 per cent.

The new law does not affect pension payments based upon non-service connected disability.

5% Reduction In Voltage Announced By Vepco

Vepco instituted a 5% reduction in voltage this morning, June 10, in order to assure condinuity of service to its customers on this usually hot June 10th.

The voltvation became necessary because of the critical power supply situation which developed when several major generator units went out of service.

Vepco officials expect the situation to be eased when one of the nuclar units at Surry returns to service late today.

During the replacement of a new power transformer in a station adjacent to Surry power station in the early hours on Monday one of the units was tripped. Surry unit # 1 should be available for service later today since there is no problem with the unit itself, and this should relieve the problem.

The new 84,500 k.w., York town unit #3, schedule for commercial operation June 1, will be in preliminary operation during the week to suppliment capability.

Additional units out of service are the other unit at Surry, for the replacement of pump shaft. Two large units at Chesterfield power station, for emergency repairs and 1 unit at Portsmouth power station.

In the meantime Vepco is purchasing all available power from neighboring utilities and has crews working on all the units to bring them back into service as soon as possible.
